To Whom It May Concern

I would like to voice this Practices' opposition to any fundamental changes to the tax system for small businesses (less than 100 employees) in the next 5 years.

I can understand the reasoning for a change BUT the small business community simply does not have the time, money or capability to adapt to yet another new system. It is not coping with the changes made over the last 3 years yet. Few accountants are coping.

We have two partners and 12 qualified accountants working for us and have coped with the changes but the vast majority of accountants for small business are sole practitioners and in the main they have not coped with the recent changes.

Every business person I speak to complains about the new tax system. Every business person and that includes the successful and the unsuccessful.
